THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1866.

THE Hon. B. B. Chamberlin has consented to run as an independent candidate for President Judge in the Beaver district. Last winter he was appointed by Governor Curtin to fill a vacancy. When the Conference met last fall A. W. Acheson was put in nomination. At this Conference each of the competitors had three votes. The allegation is that the Butler Conferees, by instruction of the County Convention, were placed entirely at the discretion of Mr. Chamberlin. They took the liberty of breaking the tie by voting with the Washington men without obtaining his approval. To rectify this alleged wrong he now takes an appeal to the people.

THE general feeling of insecurity which pervades all classes of the people of the Canadas, in consequence of the threatened Fenian incursions, superadded to long standing causes of discontent, has led to unprecedented emigration from the Provinces into the United States. The emigrants are principally farmers and mechanics—just that sort of population the Canadas can least afford to spare, and which will prove the largest gain on this side of the border.

A FLAMING radical of Pennsylvania, who recently subsided into a frigid conservative, and received a valuable appointment as the reward of his compliance, was rallied by a personal friend on his sudden change. In reply he frankly said: "My fortune is exhausted. I am poor. As a politician I am played out. And when you talk of the Bread and Butter Brigade, you meet my case exactly."

THE Meadville, Republican puts at rest various rumors injurious to the prospects of Mr. FINNEY. It says:

> "Our friends in the other counties of this District should not be deceived by the exaggerated stories of disaffection in this county towards Mr. Finney. The party is rallying to his support in the most cordial and determined manner, and his majority will not fall below that of the ticket generally."

THE editor of the Memphis Avalanche, who gave at the Cleveland Convention a pledge of "security of life, person, property, and freedom of speech and opinion to all," went home, and forthwith commenced publishing in a black list the names of the delegates to the Southern Loyalist Convention. That was a significant commentary in the value of his professions.

OFFICERS of the Army who sought promotion by getting up the Cleveland Convention, as an endorsement of the President's Policy, are responsible for the grand demonstration now making in this city. If they are satisfied with this result, the other sort have no reason to complain.

A SELF-CONSTITUTED delegation of the supporters of the President in this city have gone to Washington to urge that no more bad appointments be made in Pennsylvania. Such prudence merits commendation; but it strikes us it ought to have taken an earlier start.

THE correspondent of the New York Tribune says that the "decorations in Pittsburgh," in honor of the Convention now in session, "surpass those of Philadelphia, while the Southern Loyalists Convention was assembled there."

—Rev. Mr. Meredith, of Richmond, tells of a negro woman of that region leading her people in idol dances, and giving out herself as immortal. Rev. Dr. Marshall, of Mississippi, says hundreds of negroes in that State have adopted what they call the New Religion. They teach that God is dead; and that the Saviour has been superseded by two old negro women, whom they worship in his stead.

—A. Johnson of Chicago, was to have been married on Sunday night: the wedding party assembled, and the bride was in waiting—but A. J. did not appear, and has not been heard of since. His wedding suit disappeared with him, and suspicions are entertained that he has been murdered.

FINAL ADJOURNMENT.

The rain, which seemed only to have been waiting for the great procession of Tuesday night to be completed, in undampened pleasantness, began to fall heavily before morning, and when day broke, the amount of water that had fallen, and was still falling rapidly, would have been somewhat suggestive even to old Noah. With the exception of the Chinese lanterns, and such flimsy ornamentations, the adornments of the day before had bravely withstood the assaults of the elements, and the few who ventured out at an early hour still saw a beautifully decorated city. As the morning advanced the rain still continued, but crowds of people commenced to throng the streets, regardless of the pelting they got, and as the hour for assembling approached, the tide began to set towards the place of meeting.

MORNING SESSION.

City Hall was again densely packed at an early hour yesterday morning before the hour for assembling had arrived. The same difficulty was experienced that delayed and vexed the Convention on its first day—those who had no business in the seats took possession of them with the effect of crowding out the delegates who belonged in them. Delegations as they entered the Hall were obliged to stand or take seats in separate parts of the Hall. We understand that tickets have been issued to the delegates, which should be demanded at the door. If this measure had been adopted on the first day of the Convention much valuable time would have been saved, and a vast amount of trouble would have been avoided. We wish that yesterday the cards of admission had been rigorously demanded at least until after the delegations had all been settled in their places.

At ten o'clock the meeting was called to order by the Chairman, who requested the committee of one from each State, appointed on Tuesday, to clear seats for the delegations to proceed with the duties assigned them. The Chairman also announced that, after the delegations had been seated, the aisles would have to be cleared of those who did not hold credentials, in order that communication might be maintained between the entrance and the platform. One or two delegations, who had not previously appointed their members to the committee, announced them at this time, and the work of arranging the delegations proceeded. The Vice Presidents and Secretaries were invited to take seats on the platform while the settlement of the delegations was in progress. The roll of States was called, each delegation, as the name of its State was called, announcing its presence and taking positions in the Hall. This process of seating occupied considerable time, and caused some confusion, but it was effectually accomplished at last.

A DELEGATION THAT CROWDED THE HALL.

As Ohio was called to take the position assigned them half the assembly arose and claimed the honor of belonging to that delegation. A delegate from New Jersey said that Ohio had sent so many brave men to Pittsburgh that the Hall would not hold them all, an announcement that was received with great cheering. The Chairman of the Ohio delegation said that Ohio had a representation of over five thousand, and that to give them all seats all other delegations would be crowded out. The Chairman stated that if there were not seats enough in the Hall for Ohio she must stand. (Cheers.)

OLD ABE.

The loyal old Boy in Gray—the only loyal one who wore gray in the armies during the war—Old Abe, of the 8th Wisconsin regiment—was borne into the Hall while the work of seating the delegates was in progress, and was received with loud applause. Three cheers for the noble bird were proposed, and given right heartily, and as he took position on the platform, three more, even more hearty, were given to him, and acknowledged in his peculiar and expressive manner.

PRAYER.

The Chair announced, as soon as the delegations had secured their positions, that the regular business of the session would open with prayer from Chaplain Mattock, of Illinois. Chaplain Mattock then came forward and offered the following impressive petition:

"Almighty God, we desire to approach Thee; we desire to realize Thy presence while we draw nigh to ask Thy blessing upon us; and we desire before God, and in the presence of one another, that we should become a pious and united people, having but one fate, etc. in common. We beseech of Thee to hear us in this our imperfect prayer, and lead those who shall give voice to this Convention, and when we have become proper disciples, receive us to Thy own immediate presence, for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen."

GOVERNOR CURTIN.

The reading of the minutes of the previous session was called for, and the Secretary commenced to read them. Before he had proceeded far, however, a commotion outside the door was observable, and a moment after it had spread into and through the hall, and a tempest of cheers for Governor ANDREW G. CURTIN swept everywhere over the assembly as the "Soldiers' Friend" entered the hall. After the first enthusiasm had somewhat subsided, three cheers for Governor Curtin were called for and given with emphasis, the whole Convention rising en masse. When order had been restored the Chairman invited Governor Curtin to a seat on the platform, and as he took his seat, renewed cheers greeted him. On motion the further reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

WHO SHALL VOTE?

General Farnsworth, of Illinois, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That, in case it may be necessary to have a division of the Convention on any question, such division may be demanded by the delegations from ten States; and on the vote being taken, each State shall be allowed to cast a vote equal to its present representation in Congress, the District of Columbia and the Territories to cast one vote.

Gen. Cochrane, of New York, said there seemed to be an unwillingness to give any power to States not represented in Congress. Congress is our standard, and in his opinion the resolution should apply only to such States as are recognized by and represented in Congress.

Gen. Farnsworth responded. He was in favor of allowing every State to be represented by loyal soldiers. There should be no fears entertained of such representatives. This was a loyal national Convention, and every State should be represented.

An amendment was offered to the effect that when the delegation from any State is not equal to its number of representatives in Congress, such delegation cast one vote for each delegate.

Gen. Shurtliff, of Ohio, moved that the resolutions and amendments be laid upon the table. The motion was adopted by an almost unanimous vote.

A MAIMED VICTIM OF "MY POLICY."

General H. A. Barnum, of New York, said there was a veteran occupying a seat by his side who deserved the attention of the Convention. He was formerly a private of Battery I, of the Fourth U. S. Artillery. He had gone to his country's defence, and how effectually he had served her could be seen by his present condition. The veteran rose and elevated his arms—what there was left of them—showing short stumps, with only iron hooks to supply the place of hands. Those tokens of practical patriotism were greeted with appreciative cheers. This man, General Barnum said, after having had his natural hands replaced by hands of iron, had enlisted as color bearer in the 130th Regiment of the Ohio National Guards. On his arrival in Washington he was refused muster, and then applied to President Johnson for employment, but was refused. Hisses and groans greeted this illustration of "My Policy." The name of the soldier was demanded and given as Private Samuel H. Decker, of Lucas county, Ohio, of the 130th Regiment Ohio National Guard. The General stated that the New York delegation had extended to private Decker material aid, and he recommended the members of other delegations to do likewise.

THE HERO OF GETTYSBURG.

The Chairman announced that the Resident Committee had invited John D. Burns, the sole man of Gettysburg who shouldered his musket and went out into the terrible fight on that memorable field, to meet them during the day in the chamber of the Select Council. The City Council of Pittsburgh, intended presenting Mr. Burns with a gold headed cane, as a testimonial of the high esteem in which they held his services. Great cheering greeted this announcement. The Chairman also announced that the City Council of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, would probably visit the Convention during the day, and the members of the various delegations would [illegible] them such a greeting as would be becoming their station and their high character.

brave men, I say, while a single voice, or arm, dares oppose the sacred cause, at which each centres such holy associations, any motto shall be now, and always, "Come on, let us try them once more."

While disappointed statesmen and political tools, led by a man deaf to the promptings of faith and national justice, combine with the impoverished and desperate agents of the rebel cause, to overthrow the government, every true man should hold himself ready, a "minute man," for his country's call.

How can a people, willing to be directed by the "pillar and cloud" of a righteous Providence, fail to see a new duty in the new shaping of public affairs?

The soldier on the battle field, the sailor on his deck, the people in their homes, have tried the rebel cause, and the universal verdict is, "Guilty! and recommended to mercy!" They say acknowledge in good faith, and conform to the circumstances of your defeat, give some guarantee of your disposition to keep the peace in future, and we will regard you no longer as enemies, but friends restored, and joyfully received into the national family.

We do not care to walk arm-in-arm with you into the reconstruction, go "hand and heart" with us, or not at all. Politeness and cunning may suit you, we want truthful fellowship in our political alliance, if we fail to secure it in social life.

In short, if Southern rebels and Northern sympathizers, will not accept the proffers of peace, made by the legitimate majority, against whom the one made open, and the other a secret and more despicable warfare. If terms conceived in a spirit of justice and tendered in good faith, are not accepted; if factious resistance to the acts of Congress, is still persevered in, then must the loyal States assert their rights once more, fling their banners to the breeze, and rallying to the citadel, stand ready to repel the foe in whatever form he may come, however he may be supported.

May God in his infinite mercy avert from this people the horrors of a renewed war. But forewarned is forearmed. Our country's flag has been set as a signal of hope to the world, promising Freedom, equality, and equal justice to all the oppressed, who seek the protection of its sheltering folds. Those to whom it is a promise only, must be confirmed in their love and confidence; for the perfected results we must all labor in the spirit of the men of seventy-six, the men of 1812, of the brave boys in blue, who have made the last and greatest sacrifice during the war of the rebellion. To this common cause of freedom and humanity, let us, in the spirit of our forefathers, "pledge our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

The patriotic fervor bequeathed by the spirit of seventy-six—to the men of eighteen hundred and twelve, and caught from them by the loyal spirits of sixty-one, is finely expressed in the graphic poem by Bayard Taylor, which I will now read to you:

SCOTT AND THE VETERAN.

An old and crippled veteran to the War Department came,
He sought the Chief who led him on many a field of fame,
The Chief who shouted "forward!" where'er his banner rose,
And bore its stars in triumph, behind the flying foes.

Have you forgotten, General the battered soldier cried,
The days of Eighteen Hundred Twelve, when I was at your side.
Have you forgotten Johnson that fought at Lundy's Lane?
'Tis true I'm old and pensioned, but I want to fight again.

"Have I forgotten!" said the chief, "my brave old soldier, No!
And here's the hand I gave you then, and let it tell you so;
But you have done your share my friend, you're crippled, old and gray,
And we have need of younger arms and fresher blood to-day."

"But General!" cried the veteran, a flush upon his brow,
"The very men who fought with us, they say are traitors now,
They've torn the flag of Lundy's Lane, our old red, white and blue,
And while a drop of blood is left, I'll show that drop is true."

I'm not so weak but I can strike, and I've a good old gun,
To get the range of traitor's hearts, and pick them one by one.
Your Minnie rifles, and such arms, it aint worth while to try:
I couldn't get the hang of them, but I'll keep my powder dry!

"God bless you, comrade," said the Chief, "God bless your loyal heart!
[illegible] and claim to [illegible]
They'll plant our sacred banner in each rebellious town,
And woe, henceforth, to any hand that dares to pull it down."

"But, General!" still persisting, the weeping veteran cried,
"I'm young enough to follow, so long as you're my guide;
And some, you know, must bite the dust, and that at least can I.
So give the young ones a place to fight, but me a place to die.

If they should fire on Pickens, let the Colonel in command
Put me upon the rampart, with the flag-staff in my hand:
No odds how hot the cannon smoke, or how the shells may fly;
I'll hold the Stars and Stripes aloft, and hold them till I die.

I'm ready, General, so you let a post to me be given,
Where Washington can see me, as he looks on me from Heaven,
And say to Putnam at his side, or, may be General Wayne:
There stands old Billy Johnson, that fought at Lundy's Lane!

And when the fight is hottest, before the traitors fly,
When shell and ball are screeching and bursting in the sky,
If any shot should hit me, and lay me on my face,
My soul would go to Washington's, and not to Arnold's place."

The reading of this poem drew forth the most uproarious applause, and Sheridan's Ride was loudly called for. Mr. Murdoch stated that Sheridan was an old friend of his, [illegible] Lookout Mountain.

THE RECEPTION.

GOV. CURTIN'S SPEECH.

the assemblage of the true men of the Republic. Yesterday I spoke in an interior county, to-morrow I shall speak again, and next day, and next day, and next day, until the election. (Applause.) I will draw inspiration from the presence of these heroic men, and I will go from this Convention to work zealously in my allotment, for I am with you all soldiers of the Republic in this great movement, in feeling and in sentiment, and I bear with me to the people of this great loyal Commonwealth the sentiment of this body of loyal soldiers. Having for four years been intimately connected with the soldiers from Pennsylvania, knowing much of the suffering of the people at home, having numbered the dead—for the bill of mortality came fresh to me from every field of battle—with a full knowledge of how many widows and orphans have been made during the war, I trust that my country may never be plunged into another such war, and that you may never be called upon again to rally in defence of your country against domestic foes. Of all men in this country the soldiers who saved it are the proper men to meet now and deliberate upon what are the true lessons of the war, and when you have concluded upon what are the true lessons of the war, you have the power to compel the Government to yield to your conviction. Politicians and statesmen and officials shall sink into insignificance before the mighty voice of the surviving soldiers of the Republic. (Loud and prolonged applause.)

Gen. Moody, after the applause with which Gov. Curtin's speech was received had subsided, stated, that a moment or two before, he saw in the assembly a maimed soldier—a brave Prussian soldier who had made his mark on rebel soldiers all through our great war. This man was Major General Willich, of Cincinnati. The name was received with shouts of applause, and it was requested that Gen. Willich take the platform and address the assembly. That officer had disappeared, however, and did not come forward.

Gen. Moody proposed that Major Gen. James S. Negley, the hero of Stone River, receive three cheers. The cheers were given with a hearty will, and Gen. Negley was vociferously called upon for a speech. In response, he came forward and addressed the Convention.

GEN. J. S. NEGLEY'S ADDRESS.

Gen. Negley made the following remarks:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow-soldiers:—I could crave no higher compliment, I could ask no greater homage, than the respect you have paid me in this invitation. I have not coveted an opportunity of expressing my views to this Convention. The humble services which have been alluded to by the gentleman were sufficient attestation of the feeling that I had in my heart towards the object of this Convention, and of the sympathy I had felt in my soul for its deliberations and its suggestions. I was aware that it was to be the great tide, like the tide in the Bay of Fundy that sweeps with irresistable power, which sweeps all the small sloops, politicians otherwise, upon the banks. I feel to-day, that this Convention will culminate in a success never attained by any other convention on this continent. No convention was ever ennobled as this one has been by the representatives of the country, by the foremost men in the ranks of its defenders in its passage through the trials, as in yonder motto, of the government. Mr. Chairman, the deliberations of this Convention tend to nothing less than the preservation of the priceless traits of your heroic fortitude, your unwearied efforts, and your unquestionable sacrifices in defence of the Union cause. At this moment when we have a party for Cesar, and another for Pompey, and another for Brutus, I may say without fear of denial on the part of the Boys in Blue, that you will take care of the American Union. I can further say that you have still another round in your cartridge boxes, another arrow in your bosom, to shoot the Cesar who dares to raise his cap on the pole of despotism above the will of the American people for them to bow to. I am aware you have business before you; that you have much to do; that you have yet to seal the deliberations of this great Convention, and have to announce, as of old, with the thunder of your artillery, that you are still in the ranks of duty—still in defense of the rights of the people; and, therefore, I shall not trespass on your time. I thank you with my heart's best wishes for your attendance here. (Tremendous applause.)

W. R. Locke, of Maine, was then introduced, and entertained the audience with a song entitled "My Policy," the New Jersey delegation joining in the chorus. Prof. J. W. Pope, in response to loud calls, sang several songs, which were well received.

Chaplain Moody here announced that the gallant Major General Willich, was on the stand, and on his motion the General was introduced to the Convention.

General Willich in a very pleasant manner, and with a marked German accent spoke briefly to the Assembly.

MAJOR GENERAL WILLICH'S REMARKS.

MY DEAR COMRADES—I suppose that my friends bring me on the stand to show you a true American that has not been born among you. My old soldiers will understand me very well, because I talked so much Dutch to them that they took my Dutch for English. (Laughter.) And then, besides, that I regarded our coming together here only as an occasion to make a profession of our political creed, which I think is just as high as our religious creed. I thought we had come together for that purpose, and am glad to feel that such is the case. I do not want to count or calculate the number here, notwithstanding we might put ourselves on the scales, and then we would see where our heaviest weight is. (Laughter.) Those of the loyal Convention who were only the stragglers of our army. Well, I guess if they could only look here and see the honest faces all around us they would be ashamed of and would condemn themselves. I guess there can be no doubt but they can see we are the grand army of the Republic. It is here, and if they do not want to see it there they will have to feel it. (Great applause.)

A PLEASANT AFFAIR.

Jno. D. Burns, of Gettysburg, was now escorted to the platform and introduced to the audience, being received with loud and continued cheering. After the cheering had ceased, Mr. Robb proceeded on behalf of Councils to welcome the old veteran to the hospitality of the city, and a beautiful gold-headed cane, as an earnest of the high regard in which he is held by our patriotic countrymen.

General Negley came forward at this stage of the proceedings and presented the recipient of the cane with a handsome bunch of flowers, the same being a present from the ladies who tender to Mr. Burns their attention and desire that his pathway to the grave may be strewed with flowers.

The chairman returned thanks on behalf of Mr. Burns, who had no voice to speak, but as he has been heard from before, he (Burns) had no occasion to be heard from now. (Great applause.)

GREETING FROM GEN. FREMONT.

A telegram from Gen. J. C. Fremont, dated New York, Sept. 24th, was read. The General regretted that [illegible] the object of the Convention personally.

A letter was also read from J. H. [illegible] Union League [illegible] unanimously adopted amid much cheering.

[illegible]

A motion to adjourn until half past three o'clock was made and seconded, but as the question was about to be put, the announcement was made that the Committee on Resolutions were ready to report, and General Butler, the chairman of the Committee made his way to the platform, where he was received with cheers.

The motion to adjourn was withdrawn, and the report of the Committee was read.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That the action of the present Congress in proposing the pending Constitutional amendment is wise, patriotic and just.

It clearly defines American citizenship and guarantees all the rights of every citizen.

It places on a just and equal basis the right of representation, making the vote of a man in one State equally potent with the vote of another man in any State.

It righteously excludes from places of honor and trust the chief conspirators and guiltiest rebels whose perjured crimes have drenched the land in fraternal blood.

It puts into the very frame of our Government the inviolability of the national debt, and the nullity forever of all obligations contracted in support of the rebellion.

Resolved, That it is unfortunate for the country that these propositions have not been received in the spirit of conciliation, clemency and fraternal feeling in which they were offered, as they are the mildest terms ever granted to subdued rebels.

Resolved, That the President, as an Executive officer, has no right to a policy as against the Legislative Department of the Government. That his attempt to fasten his scheme of reconstruction upon the country is a usurpation as dangerous as it is unwise. His acts in sustaining it have retarded the restoration of peace and unity. They have converted conquered rebels into impudent claimants for rights which they have forfeited and places which they have desecrated. If consummated it would render the sacrifices of the nation useless; the loss of the lives of our buried comrades vain; and the war in which we have so gloriously triumphed what his present friends at Chicago in 1864 declared it to be—a failure.

Resolved, That the rights of the conquerors to legislate for the conquered has been recognized by the public law of all civilized nations. By the operations of that law for the conservation of the highest good of the whole country, Congress has the undoubted right to establish measures for the conduct of the revolted States, and to deal all acts of legislation that are necessary for the complete restoration of the Union.

Resolved, That when the President claims that by the aid of the army and navy he might have made himself dictator, he insulted every soldier and sailor of the Republic. He ought distinctly to understand that the tried patriots of this nation can never be used to overthrow civil liberty to popular governments.

Resolved, That the neutrality laws should be so amended as to give the fullest liberty to the citizens consistent with the national faith. That the great Union Republican party is pledged to maintain liberty and equality of rights everywhere, and therefore we tender to all people struggling for freedom, our sympathy and cordial co-operation.

Resolved, That the Union men of the South, without distinction of race or color, are entitled to the gratitude of every loyal soldier and sailor who served his country in suppressing the rebellion; and that in their present dark hour of trial, when they are being murdered and persecuted by thousands, solely because they are now and have been true to the Government, we will not prove recreant to our obligations, but will stand by and protect with our lives, if necessary, those brave men who remained true to us when all around were false and faithless.

Resolved, That the public domain as the common property of the nation, ought to be sacredly held donated to the benefit of the nation's defenders; that Congress ought to legislate in regard to bounties and pensions, with the most exact and impartial justice to all soldiers and sailors.

Resolved, That in the organization of the army and navy, the volunteer officers and soldiers demand that faithful services in the field ought to be held equivalent to an education at West Point.

Resolved, That any officer, soldier or sailor who left his flag to serve with our enemies, ought never to have place in the army or navy of the Union.

The resolutions were received with tremendous cheering, and as soon as quiet was restored General Cochran, of New York, after a few words expressing the full satisfaction the resolutions must give to every loyal man, moved their adoption.

The motion was seconded and the report unanimously adopted, with great cheering.

FORMATION OF A NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

General Butler stated that as the resolutions had been adopted he had been instructed to submit the following:

Resolved, That a National Committee, to form a Soldiers' and Sailors' Union, of all who agree with the principles set forth in the resolutions of this Convention, shall be selected by the several delegations here represented, to consist of three members from each State and Territory, the names to be reported to this Convention in order to perfect an organization, and take such steps as may seem to them necessary for the furtherance of the principles of the great Union party, to which we belong.

An universal call for a speech from General Butler rose and swelled to such volume, that all thought of present adjournment was given up, and he came forward, welcomed by cheers, and spoke for about three quarters of an hour as follows:

GEN. B. F. BUTLER'S SPEECH.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:—May I ask your indulgence of the most perfect attention in order that I may be able to make myself heard. We are met here upon the most momentous issue ever presented before any body of men. To no such body of men was ever before a governmental question presented for their adoption. You are called upon to support, as citizens, those principles and those rights, and that course of government for which you fought in the field. We might have well hoped when the last rebel surrendered, when our armies were victorious everywhere, that peace, unity and concord would prevail. Unfortunately for the country, some evil thought entered into the heart of the Executive of the nation, assuming to himself a strength of mind and a purpose to deal with the question which he should have presented to the government of the United States in Congress assembled. He undertook by his own act to reconstruct the country. It was an act for the power to do which no President ever before laid claim. The question of admitting States into the Union had more than once before been presented to this Government. Kansas we all remember. Missouri passes beyond the memory of many of us, but history tells us that the country divided upon the question as to upon what terms Missouri should be admitted. Did the then Executive—bold Constitutional lawyer as he was—did the then Executive claim that by his fiat—by his "policy"—he should say how this State should come into the Union. No! It was left to the Congress of the United States. Passing on he gave what he called an experimental government to each of the States—a government for which I have searched in vain for any Constitutional authority. What were these States that had revolted from the Union? For in that question, to which I propose to call your attention for a few moments, it seems to me the whole issue is concentrated. You remember that, because Abraham Lincoln was elected, eleven States, with the sympathy of some two or three more, revolted from the Union, seized all public property, drove out every vestige of Union authority, or Union power, and avowed themselves against the constituted authorities of the country; organized themselves into a new government, raised armies, and attempted to set afloat a navy, and put themselves in such a position that the Supreme Court of the United States decided that all the people of their territory were as public enemies, engaged in a civil, territorial war. Why, at this point, fellow-soldiers, should we stop to consider what was their condition? If they were not at that time out of the Union, certain it is that all the Union was out of them. (Laughter.)

Standing just there, my comrades and sailors, when we passed Fort Jackson under the lead of the immortal Farragut, did we believe that Louisiana had all her rights in the Union at that time? You who landed at Fort Royal after that brilliant bombardment, fellow-soldiers, did you believe that South Carolina was in the Union, with all her rights and privileges as a part of the Union? Clearly, no! Then let us follow on for a few moments, because if there is any man here so stupid as to believe that, at that time, South Carolina had all her rights in the Union as a part of the Government, him have I offended, and he had better take his hat and go home to dinner, for I can address him no longer. With the clearest success, won at Gettysburg, Antietam, and a thousand battles, the war was fought out. We agree, do we not, that at the time I have spoken of, at the beginning of the war, these men had no rights in the Union. Then, the war was fought out, and what was the next step in the progress of the Government? All the armed soldiers representing these men, surrendered themselves as prisoners of war—Mark, surrendered themselves—surrendered themselves, their rights, everything they had, to our victorious arms! Is there any man here who will claim that by surrender, men get rights? Is there any man here who will claim that a man conquers by saying, "I give up?" Then, since they got no rights, what did they become? What did they claim that they were? What did they claim indemnity as? As paroled prisoners of war. Now, then, my doubting friends, if any there are here, are not paroled prisoners of war very poor material for making sovereign States of this Union out of? What were the States then? In intendment of public law; in intendment of every court and jurist, they were but camps of paroled prisoners, under the sword of our soldiers to see that nobody molested them, so long as they behaved themselves. Now, then, I ask you right here, and can there be any doubt, in the language of your resolutions, that the Congress of the United States, representing the government and the conquering army of the United States, have full right to make any necessary rules and regulations for the government of those camps of paroled prisoners of war? I do not discuss the question what you call them. I deal with the question fully and firmly what they were. You may call them territories, conquered provinces—any thing but our governments. I won't stand that.

But I have heard the sophism which is the end and also, the Alpha and Omega of all argument against us, saying, "well, I don't understand you, sir; you say a State has no right to secede; you say that these States tried to secede and you whipped them, and prevented them. Now then, you say they are not in the Union, and how do you reconcile that?"

Let me follow out that argument. What do we say precisely. We say that no act of State or the Government of the United States either, can alter the relation of a single citizen of this government to itself, without his consent. We say that no State can take a single foot of American soil from under the authority of the American Government, or the protection of the American flag. (Applause.) We say the obligation of every man remained the same to the United States, but the distinction we take is this: They lost their rights by the crimes they committed, but did not get rid of their obligations. They had rights as a part of this Government, as States of this Union, they had obligations as citizens of the United States.

Let me give an example from our courts. A man commits murder, he has at that moment all the rights of a citizen—the right of a ballot, the right to be elected to office, the right of the marriage relation, the right of the government of his children, the right to walk a freeman around the streets. By the act of murder, by his crime, he forfeits his right to liberty, to wife and children, and even to life itself. Mark me, he gets rid of none of his obligations to society by his own crime. So then States while they could not make one hair white or black, so far as the rights of the union, towards them were concerned, by their treason and their crimes, could forfeit all their rights in the union, they were not less traitors because they were citizens, and none the less citizens because they were traitors. Now, what is a State? It is said, a State can never die. Suppose for a moment that all the people should die, what becomes of a State then? Suppose all the people move out of a State,—I now speak of the political organization and a part of this government—What then becomes of a State? Suppose then, one step further, that all the people of the State, with the few glorious exceptions whom we need not now stop to consider, suppose that all repudiate their obligations to the government, all band themselves together and swear allegiance to another; all unite in arms to drive out the authorities of the government, what becomes of the State? Why is it destroyed, because the State is but the organ of civil government? I do not know, my friends, whether it will make the argument any stronger to quote any authority, and I especially such an authority, but Andrew Johnson in his proclamation appointing Provisional Governors, says that he appoints Provisional Governments because all civil government is destroyed in the States. With all civil government destroyed, using his language, where was the State then? Therefore, all the idea that a State can never die, that a State must always exist, and that a State by its people can fight fight the Union for four years and then come back of its own volition, and undertake to govern the Union, is a sophism and a delusion unworthy of an intelligent people. Now then, it is said further that a State cannot secede and cannot lose its rights, because it has no right to secede. Let us test that a little further. I find a man on the side walk weltering in his blood, his throat cut, and a bloody razor in his hand, showing a case of suicide. I say the man is dead. "No," say you, "the man is not dead, he has no right to cut his throat." (Laughter.) You say it is a question of right, not of fact, and I answer that it is a question of fact, not of right. I say, and I repeat it once more, that what I understand to be the true position of the Republican party on this question, is that in this great contest, not one right of the Government over those States or over their citizens was lost, but every right of every traitor on the soil was forfeited and gone forever. If we have settled these to our satisfaction upon the principles of inexorable logic and truth what the condition of the people is, we have settled definitely what are the rights of Congress and the rights of the rest of the nation. What shall be their rights? Their rights are all powerful.

Here is another question. In all governmental regulation and action it has always been found necessary for the government to treat communities as if they had erred and been misled, and are in the mass to be forgiven. But all governments have always treated as examples those who have misled their communities, and that is our duty. It would seem to be in the present crisis. Extend towards the South and the Southern men who, as communities, have been misled, our cordial welcome back, when they will come back in the spirit of justice, of regret, of kindness and of loyalty with which we offer to receive them. (Cheers.)

But for the men that misled them—the great representative men—let them be so dealt with, that no man hereafter shall leave his seat in the Congress of the United States or desert our glorious flag for the purpose of taking command in the armies of our enemies. As I have said, governments must deal with communities as if they have erred. As soon as communities have shown a desire to be received back in humble—mark the word—in humble thankfulness for the clemency meted out to them—because it is for men who have erred to be humble—when they acknowledge their mistake. For the rest I would answer, were the question put by the President, "Would you hang eight millions of people?" No! No! God forbid. But you begin and hang one, and we'll tell you when to stop. Now, Mr. Davis is by no means, perhaps, the worst man in the Southern Confederacy; but he chose the place of a representative man—he chose to be the President of a great Confederation which should ripen into an empire. And during that play he played the game boldly. He played for an empire—he staked his life upon the result, and let him pay the forfeit (great applause) as an example for all time that no man shall plot treason in the halls of the Congress of the United States.

And what shall we say, fellow soldiers, of another man, who, educated in the military academy of the United States, to be equal to which we had to serve four years in the field amid death and blood and privation and imprisonment, brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, the chosen, petted, confided in Chief of Staff to the Lieutenant General of the army of the United States; who on the nineteenth of April—on the very day that our soldiers, our neighbors and our comrades were being shot down in Baltimore—resigned his commission and, if as it is said, with tears, it only shows that he knew better when he did it—resigned his commission and went back to his native State for what purpose? For the purpose of—on the following Monday, on the morning of the 22d of April, 1861, receiving a commission as commander of all the rebel forces in Virginia. Now then let me again say if there is here any man so stupid as to believe that Colonel Lee, of the United States cavalry, when he resigned his commission on the nineteenth of April, did not believe and know that he was to be appointed on the twenty-second as commander of the rebel army—him have I offended, and no argument can reach him. He did know it. And now, fellow soldiers, what shall be done to a soldier who deserts his flag and takes with him the secrets of his commander? (Cries of "hang him!" "shoot him!" and "not a soldier's death." A voice, "swear him and let him go." (Laughter.) What shall be done with a man who deserted his flag and carries with him the secrets of his commander for the purpose of taking a command—and that a higher command in the armies of the enemies of his country? Why we know by every law human—and I hope without irreverence Divine—any soldier that deserts his flag for the purpose of taking command in the armies of his enemies, shall surely suffer death. But say you, General Lee but follows the secession of his State. Alas! history shows that there was not left to him even that poor excuse for rebellion. For on the Seventeenth of April his state passed the ordinance of secession, but they put in that ordinance a clause, that it should be void and of no effect until it was ratified by the people at the polls—the vote to be taken on the 23d of the following May, more than a month after, so that General Lee left the army of the United States and went into Virginia—to the head of the rebel army in Virginia before his State seceded, and carried her out at the point of the bayonet. Now, then, we had another traitor, and he escaped punishment, but he did not remain here. We have had an equally guilty traitor, and the question to be decided in this country is, whether his surrender as a prisoner of war, when captured, shall avail him against the desertion of his flag to take service in the armies of the enemies of his country. No, no. I therefore again say that I would make example of these men so that no soldier here after should find it convenient to desert the flag of his country; and for the rest, the most humiliating spectacle that takes place at the close of the war, is that here were those rebels threatening that if we did not do pretty much as they wished, they would go to Mexico, Brazil or Central America. What ought we to have said to them? "Go, go! stand not upon the order of your going, but go at once. Here's a free ticket on board some United States transport, and go at once, and the farther the better. See to it that you never come back. And is there one here that believes that if that course had been taken, there would not have been peace, quiet and amity? Nobody doubts it. But the golden opportunity was then lost, yet not lost forever. We have often told the States in rebellion, that if they will accept the Constitutional amendments they will return to their share in the government. But fellow soldiers, I want to add another condition to that, there might be many that the country might need to add, but I as a soldier, desire to add one condition, and you shall judge me whether I shall be very harsh. In the cemetery of Texas, lay reposing the dead—lay reposing the bones of our comrades, who fell victims to the climate and the war in that State. They were sleeping side by side with the confederate dead, their old animosities should have been forgotten, but the State Legislature of Texas have passed a resolution that our comrades' bones must be removed to some other place, lest they contaminate the Confederate dead. Again at Hollywood sleep our comrades who died at Belle Isle and Libby; and when at a festival all Virginia turned out to deck the graves of the Confederate dead, a few Northern ladies—whom they denominate Northern school marms—went with their little pupils and a few women of darker hue, but of true patriotism, and decked the graves of our comrades with their small tokens of respect. But those flowers and those crosses were torn down and trampled in the dust. Again the United States, with money from the Treasury of the North, sustained by our taxes, bought a piece of land at Malvern Hill, and the brave and glorious dead who reposed in their last resting place on that battle-field, where we may say without doing wrong to anybody, had their victory been followed up the war might have been ended—I say the United States bought a cemetery and gathered the fragments of our dead comrades and buried them there with due respect and Christian kindness. Over their remains they raised this (pointing to the flag) our flag as the most fitting monument to the soldiers of the Union. (Applause.) And yet the reconstructed rebels of Virginia tore down that flag and trailed it in the dust. (Hisses.) There was a time when a man, who tore down the American flag met his deserts. (A voice—"three cheers for the only man who dared to hang a traitor.")

Now, the condition I shall propose and you will judge, fellow-soldiers, whether or not it is a hard one—is this, that we shall not have those States brought back into this Union until our dead comrades can sleep in peace and honor within their graves. And if any man wants reconstruction before that happens, I am not willing for one. Therefore, the committee have said in their resolutions that it was unfortunate that our propositions by Congress was not received with the same fraternal spirit in which they were offered. And until that time comes, be it sooner or later, till every man can walk in peace, carrying, if he pleases, the flag of the United States, with devotion to the Union on his lips and not be molested in any revolted State, for one I do not want to see that State in the Union, making laws for me. (Great cheers.) The sooner the better that that time comes, but never unless the two things come together. (Applause.) Why, my friends, they say we have unkind feelings towards these men—that we have malignity and malice. I was at Philadelphia, and I met the true Union men of the south there, and the malice that we showed them was to take them to our hearts—to our homes—to every good feeling, and embrace them as the true brothers of the North. That was the way we met the Southern loyalist who had ever stood by us. We have no feelings against them. For one I can point back to the time when we had achieved the greatest victory we ever did achieve in November, 1864, when we elected President Johnson. (Laughter.) I beg pardon for the mishap when we elected President Lincoln, and that it settled the rebellion. With his permission—with his knowledge—I stated at New York in a public meeting that the only thing we asked them to do, was to lay down their arms and come back and resume their places, and if they did it then, we would receive them. But they chose to fight months, and months after as long as they could. We brought them back, and what is the answer? The answer is at New Orleans in the murder of Dostie—the answer is in Kentucky, where a Union officer for doing his duty was kidnapped and taken to be tried by a rebel jury for obeying the orders of his commander. Now, then, I say, until they, with the same fraternal spirit in which we offer it, choose to come back, and claim—not their rights, but take what the clemency and magnanimity of the North concedes to them—until they receive Northern men—Northern soldiers into their communities, with equal rights and equal privileges, nay more, until every man, white or black, is as good as any body else in the South. Until that time, I say, I do not desire to see them back. How is this question then to be settled? I have some knowledge of the South, and of Southern men, and I have already said to you that had the President and Congress agreed in what was to be done, and what terms they would offer for the surrender of Johnston's army, those terms would have been acceded to. But by the encouragement of the President—by his most singular and not to be explained course—by the action of those at the North, who have encouraged them, the South have come into a very different frame of mind. But fellow soldiers, let them see that the President don't rule this country without the aid of Congress. Let them understand that what we fought for we will have. Let them understand that we take no step backward, and that as sure as light follows darkness, so surely we propose to maintain the Government of this country for which we have fought, and they will accept any terms we will offer them. And we will offer none but what are just and magnanimous.

At the conclusion of this most able speech the meeting adjourned till four o'clock in the afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention re-assembled at four o'clock, and was called to order by the chairman, who introduced the venerable Rev. Dr. Page, as the divine who had officiated at the nuptials of Jefferson Davis.

Dr. Page said he had done so, but he could not tell whether it was an honor or not, for the conduct of the bridegroom since that important event had been of such a character as to place him beyond the pale of society. (Cheers.) After invoking the Divine blessing on the Convention, the gentleman withdrew amid applause.

At the request of the Chairman the Secretary read a communication from the Union League of Philadelphia, stating that a grand Union League Mass Meeting would be held in that city on the 8th of October, to which they invited the Convention.

Three cheers were then proposed and given with a will for the loyal Union League of Philadelphia.

A dispatch was also read from twenty thousand Union men of Kansas, extending a greeting to the Boys in Blue of the Nation in convention assembled at Pittsburgh.

SPEECH OF GENERAL HERRIMAN.

In response to repeated calls, General Herriman, of New Hampshire, came forward and said in substance as follows:

Mr. President and fellow soldiers, I would not presume at this late hour to ask your attention to such a humble individual as myself for a single moment. The war is over, and now we enjoy a peace. The speaker here went on to notice the late convention at Cleveland, likewise the one at Philadelphia, (which he termed the Johnson-Doolittle-Butternut-Convention); he then asked them if they were ready to give up the government into the hands of such rebels as those who had murdered our President and starved our soldiers; no, they should be taken by the skruf of the neck and shaken over hell until they squalled like cats. We stand by the graves of 300,000 of our brave men, and in the presence of the God of justice we stand pledged to uphold the rights for which they died; we have passed through the fierce struggle of war, and the bright day of glory has dawned upon us. I am confident we shall carry the State of Pennsylvania by a large majority. Geary will win with three-fourths of his troops. In conclusion, I would say, all hail to our glorious army and navy, and likewise to all the men and women of our country whose ardour has never abated. (Applause.)

When the speaker had concluded, the Chair announced that the following gentlemen would constitute the Soldiers' and Sailors'

The Secretary stated that inasmuch as the delegations for several States had failed to hand in the names of persons to serve on that committee. The committee for those States could not be appointed, but would be as soon as the requisite names were furnished.

The Chair requested the indulgence of the Convention while Col. A. D. S[illegible], of Indiana, would offer a resolution.

Amid loud cheers and cries of "Streight!" "Streight!" the gentleman came forward and said:

I was one of those who believed that when the war was ended the South would have been subdued. It is said that treason may become respectable as traitors become numerous. If we let the traitors off loyalty will soon be at a discount. It strikes me forcibly that we should prepare for the worst end, and if our enemies are preparing for the next war, let us prepare also.

In conclusion I have a resolution which I desire to offer, and, if the Convention think it worthy, have it adopted. It is this:

Resolved, That the President and Congress be requested to have removed from the Southern States all depots of arms and munitions of war, and that no more be sent there until the rebel States have given sufficient guarantees that they will not again rise in rebellion.

The resolution was greeted with deafening plaudits and cries of "good."

The Chair desired to know what should be done with the resolution; whether it should be referred to the Committee on Resolutions, or passed after a suspension of the rules.

A delegate moved the suspension of the rules, in order that the resolution, which he deemed an important one, should be adopted.

The question was put, resulting in the rules being suspended and the resolution being carried by an almost unanimous standing vote.

The President then introduced General Gibbons, of Ohio, who, on taking the stand, spoke as follows:

SPEECH OF GENERAL GIBBONS.

General Gibson said he was opposed to rebels coming into political power; He wanted them disfranchised; the best thing for them would be thirteen feet of hemp to each man. He regretted there is sometimes a soldier who listens to this political gospel of Andrew Johnson, "O! every one that thirsteth come and worship me, and I will give him a post-office. The soldier says I will sell my conscience, I will go for office, and I will go back into rebellion in the face of three hundred thousand graves dug by rebel hands. But thank God that there is a party in this country whose principles are known, a party of liberty. The hosts of Pennsylvania will march on to victory and the ballot box shall declare the result, and traitors shall retire. Do we owe it to Andrew Johnson's policy that there are thirty-six stars on our flag? no, we owe it to the stout arms of the boys who went through a baptism of blood. [Applause.] Follow citizens I thank you.

Colonel Moody then offered a resolution complimenting the Soldiers' League of Washington as the projectors of the present Convention. He stated that it was composed of seven hundred men who had, for the most part, served as privates and non commissioned officers in the army of the Union during the late rebellion, and who had sacrificed all personal preferment rather than yield a passive obedience to the dictates of "My Policy."

The resolution was adopted.

General Barnum, of New York, offered the following resolution, which was also adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of three, to be appointed by the Chair, be instructed to publish the proceedings of this Convention, with a history of its origin and an account of all the events incident to it, and that the Secretaries of the Convention be instructed to furnish a copy of their record to said committee as soon as possible; and also that the chairman of each delegation here represented, send without delay to the said committee a roster of their respective delegations, with the post-office address of each delegate, that all may be furnished with a copy of said proceedings as soon as published.

The following is the committee appointed by the Chair: General Barnum, of New York; Private L. Edwin Dudley, of Massachusetts, and George F. Edgar.

THANKS.

General Lee, of Connecticut, offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Convention are hereby tendered to the Union Republican Executive Committee of Allegheny county, and to the resident committee, together with the ladies and citizens of this city, for the untiring exertions to render us every possible attention, and we owe a debt of gratitude to them which should be thus publicly acknowledged, and which is now cheerfully rendered.

After the adoption of the resolution, the President introduced Sergeant McGee, of Michigan. He said he did not wish to go home without seeing some representative from the ranks, some private who had carried his musket in the field, give expression to his principles which would and could be taken as indicative of how they all feel on this great question—of who shall rule this nation.

He was for the union of all the States, but he would not have a union in which justice was ignored.

He was opposed to dragging those Southern States out of the stagnant sea of secession until they had been purged out of their sins, and purified in a crucible of fire.

The speaker concluded by appealing to his fellow comrades, to stand by their principles and vote as they had fought.

CAPT. MOCKTON'S REMARKS.

Captain Mockton, a maimed soldier from Michigan, was the next speaker. He said he had entered the army at the outbreak of the war because he felt the country needed the support of every loyal man. At Shiloh he had been wounded in the arm, thigh, and side, and had fought during the entire afternoon of the first days' fight with his broken arm hanging useless by his side. He was then taken prisoner and carried eight hundred miles on the same cot he had been borne from the field on. But he had contended then for the principles which he had heard enunciated during the day in that Convention, and he was prepared to contend for them now.

After speaking some fifteen minutes the gentleman retired and gave way to

MAJ. C. I. FANGBOURNE,

Of New Jersey, who delivered a [illegible] address, which was well received. He said the Union men of New Jersey were [illegible] doing, and that when the news came from Pennsylvania, Ohio, and the other States in October, New Jersey would not be behind it, and would show by the overwhelming majority given to the republicans that she was in the Union and intended to remain, although some jocose people say she is out.

LINCOLN.

General Hascall of Indiana, then offered the following, prefacing it with a few laudatory remarks, of the character and personal worth of our late lamented President Abraham Lincoln.

Resolved, That the loyal soldiers of the Union profoundly cherish the memory of the last Chief Magistrate we aided to elect, the martyr hero, Abraham Lincoln, and we call upon our comrades in arms throughout the land to remember that his life was taken by the men who now clamor for equal rights with us in the administration of the Government.

The resolution was taken in silence by each of the vast audience rising quietly to their feet, and after standing a moment with heads bowed they as quietly sat down. It was a very impressive scene at this moment. Not a voice raised—not a sound to disturb the solemn hushed silence that reigned throughout that vast and densely crowded apartment. It was a scene well calculated to show with what profound reverence and respect the memory of the martyred President is held by those who defended our country in the hour of need and great public peril.

GENERAL CAPEHART.

A communication was then read from Gen. Capehart in which it was stated that he had refused a proposal from Gen. Custar to stump the State of West Virginia for "My Policy" by replying to the letter that if he did so his infamy would be complete and his former record robbed of its brightness. The entire audience arose en masse and cheered for at least two minutes.

A delegate from Indiana stated that he had been notified through a letter just received from Gen. John A. Logan, (cheers) that the cause of his absence was owing to a sudden illness, and that he was confined to his bed.

Some one in the rear of the hall proposed three cheers for the hero of Illinois, "black John Logan." It is unnecessary to say they were given with a gust.

Major Bloss, of Pennsylvania, moved that a copy of the proceedings of the Convention be sent to the President, Andrew Johnson. A delegate amended the resolution by adding and to Congress.

The resolution as amended was then carried by a unanimous vote.

A vote of thanks was then tendered to General Cox, for the dignified and satisfactory manner in which he had performed his duties as Chairman of the Convention.

General Cox responded by returning his thanks to the Convention for the admirable order and strict decorum they had observed during the session. They had, he said, fully redeemed the pledge he had asked of them on taking the chair, that is, they had conducted the Convention themselves without requiring the chair to enforce the rules in any case.

Three cheers were then proposed for General Cox, and given with a will.

Major Woods, of Indiana, moved that the Convention adjourn sine die. After cheers being given for Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Farragut, Negley and others, the vote on adjournment was put and carried at fifteen minutes past six o'clock. Thus ended one of the most important Conventions that has ever assembled in this Commonwealth.

Contemptible Business.—During the procession on Tuesday night, a lot of unhung scoundrels made a business of stealing flags from unguarded warehouses and dwellings. It will be well if any person offers small flags for sale, or is known to have a large number in his possession under suspicious circumstances, to have him arrested, as this business will no doubt be followed up.

GEN. BUTLER WILL SPEAK.

It affords us great pleasure to announce that Major General BENJAMIN F. BUTLER will speak to-day, at 12 o'clock, M., at the Wigwam, in Allegheny.

Another interesting feature of the programme is that General SIMON CAMERON will deliver an address.

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

The development of public opinion throughout the Northern States, during the last two months, have been of a nature to surprise and enlighten, if not the President, at least his principal supporters of Republican antecedents. It is apparent that the Policy of forcing the Southern delegations into Congress, as they are constituted, mainly of men of known disloyalty, cannot be accomplished. The Radical majority in each House is more likely to be increased, than diminished. This has led to a change in the plan of operations. Three or four of the Cabinet officers, and those most conspicuous outside, have been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the Constitutional Amendment must be ratified; and they are endeavoring to bring the President to use his influence in that direction. This is the solution of the altered tone of the Times and the Post of New York. Not that these people have changed their opinions in respect to the Amendment, but have adapted their course to meet a condition of facts which seems to be unalterable.

It must not be understood from this that they have relinquished the idea of a conglomerate party, but simply that they are taking the only course which now seems to offer any prospect for the attainment of that end. The Amendment, if adopted, will shut the rebel leaders, of certain specific grades, out of public life; but it will leave them voters. Hence, while they will not be able to exercise public functions they will be able to determine who shall. This is a large portion of political power to leave in their hands, and upon this the conservatives and democrats predicate such expectations and hopes as they still indulge.

We are glad to see matters taking this turn. If these men are disposed to cooperate in passing the Amendment, let them go ahead. The power that compels their adoption of this measure is abundantly competent to constrain their assent to any other measure which the disclosures of the future may show to be needful for the repose and security of the Republic.

A TRIMMER IN PERPLEXITY.

Mr. HENRY J. RAYMOND is not a man of strong convictions, but of fertile expedients. There is none of the martyr spirit in him; but much of that temper which seeks self-promotion by sinuous policies. Ready enough to vindicate a principle, if he could advance his own selfish interests by so doing, he does not know how to submit even to temporary disparagements that a great cause may ultimately triumph.

Last autumn, when President JOHNSON resolved not only to desert the party at whose hands he had received the highest and freshest honors, but to seek its destruction, and the elevation of its implacable foe, Mr. RAYMOND saw how he stood—and disclosed the weakness which is the blemish of his character. Said he—"We are sold; but I see no way except to follow the President." He did follow him, but with that limping discipleship which was to be expected from such a nature, under the influence of the lowest considerations.

When the Constitutional Amendment, now pending before the Legislatures of the respective States, was up for final consideration in the House of Representatives Mr. RAYMOND cavilled both at its principles and details, but finally voted for it. Nevertheless, he continued to exert all his influence as a journalist to defeat its ratification and secure the adoption of the antipodal Policy of the President. At the Philadelphia Convention, with a shameless contempt for consistency, he appeared as the author of the address promulgated to show that the Amendment was false in principle and mischievous in tendency. For a brief space he seemed to have a distinct conception of the path to success, and pursued it without hesitation.

Soon another change came over him. The patrons of the Times, disgusted with its course, began to withdraw, not only by thousands, but by tens of thousands, and the property of that establishment, lately valued at half a million dollars or upwards, was in a fair way to become comparatively valueless. Here was an argument nicely adapted to the sensibilities of Mr. RAYMOND. He keenly appreciated the plea of the pocket, when he had stood unmoved at the suggestions of reason and the promptings of humanity. He did not take long to show his faith in this argument by appropriate works. The result was a leader, in Monday's issue, formidable in length, but not in cogency, upon the importance of the Constitutional Amendment. This was followed by another leader on Tuesday, intended to show "that the public mind dreads the renewed ascendancy of the Democratic party more than it does the continued exclusion of the Southern States." Unquestionally this is true.

But "the renewed ascendancy" of the Democrats was the very thing for which ANDREW JOHNSON, THURLOW WEED, HENRY J. RAYMOND, and their fellows entered into a conspiracy with DEAN RICHMOND, S. S. COX, FERNANDO WOOD, and that ilk. Mr. RAYMOND, at least, perceives that the conspiracy is baffled. Does he fathom the depth of the popular contempt into which the conspirators are fallen?

It is not difficult for leaders who have low conceptions of the moral obligations which attach to political conduct, to stipulate what they will themselves do in a given contingency. It is hard for them, in most instances, to induce the people to ratify the engagements made in their behalf. This has had a recent illustration in the fate of the conservative leaders. They made a bargain with the democrats and rebels for mutual advantage, and expected to carry a considerable retinue or republicans along with them—enough to make the movement a success, and to give them conspicuity. A more complete failure was never witnessed. Doubtless these disappointed gentlemen now understand it is not easy to corrupt the masses, and that leaders are formidable only when they follow the clearly defined currents of popular opinion and feeling.

THE democrats persist in circulating a report that Congress, at its last session passed an Act allowing an extra bounty of three hundred dollars to colored soldiers, while for the same service only one hundred dollars was allowed to white ones. No such act was passed, and no act which affords any excuse for such a representation. In Armstrong county those statements have been so pertinaciously repeated that a reward of one hundred dollars has been offered for the production of evidence to sustain it. So far no claimant has appeared for the money. None will appear; but the falsehood will be disseminated as industriously as ever.

THE democrats have manifestly lost all hope of electing Mr. CLYMER. We so judge from the fact that in various counties they are reported to be freely offering to give votes for Gen. GEARY in exchange for votes for their candidates for Congress or the Legislature. We warn republicans against bargains of this sort. The General is certain to have margin enough without trading other candidates into defeat. Give every vote you have to the Congressional and Legislative ticket. By so doing the splendor of the coming triumph will be doubly enhanced.

WHEN Mr. JEFFERSON was President, Governor SULLIVAN of Pennsylvania gave him an invitation to make a tour through the Northern States. In response, Mr. JEFFERSON said:

> "I confess I am not reconciled to the idea of a Chief Magistrate parading himself through the several States as an object of public gaze, and in quest of an applause, which, to be valuable, should be purely voluntary. I had rather acquire silent good will by a faithful discharge of my duties, than owe expressions of it to putting myself in the way of receiving it."—Vol. 5, p. 101-2 Jefferson's works.

THE New York Post concludes a leader with this paragraph:

"The President would do wisely to use his influence with the leaders of public opinion in the Southern States, to impress this fact upon their minds, and to counsel them to wise and statesmanlike action. The shortest way to perfect re-organization, now, is to adopt the Amendment. Various causes have made that, after much discussion, the single issue of the day; and until this issue is settled, and settled by the adoption of the Amendment, the country will be in a turmoil, and the most vital interests will be neglected or put aside."

A WASHINGTON special to the Cincinnati Gazette makes this statement:

"The New York Conservative leaders, headed by Thurlow Weed, have been here for several days, nearly frightened out of their wits at the prospect of the forthcoming election in that State. They admit that Hoffman cannot be elected. Thurlow now gives up all hopes of the success of 'My Policy' in the Northern States, and in an interview with the President to-day, is said to have frankly expressed his opinion that the Radical majority in the next Congress, instead of being diminished, will be increased."

COL. AUGUSTUS PRUYN.—We are authorized and requested to say that Lieutenant Colonel Augustus Pruyn, late of the Fourth New York Cavalry, and brother of Hon. Robert H. Pruyn, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, wishes to be considered as in favor of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention to be held in Pittsburgh this week, and as opposed to the Johnson-Democratic coalition.—Albany Evening Journal.

TAKE TIME BY THE FORELOCK.—The miasma which generates epidemic fevers is now rising in clouds under the blazing beams of the dog day sun. Every living body, as well as refuse animal and vegetable matter, emits unwholesome vapors, and in crowded cities and the dense assemblages which business and pleasure call together the elements of disease are evolved. The pressure upon every vital organ is never so great as in the second and third months of summer, and common sense teaches us that these organs require to be reinforced to meet it.

We hold our lives, so to speak, on a REPAIRING LEASE, and this is the season when the process of dilapidation is most rapid and repairs are most required. Therefore BUILD UP, TONE AND STRENGTHEN THE POWERS OF NATURE with that mighty vegetable recuperent, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. He who takes it may be said to clothe himself in sanitary mail, against which epidemic disease will hurl its poisoned shafts in vain. This is no gratuitous assertion, but a great MEDICAL FACT, attested by twelve years' experience in every climate of the habitable globe. Extremes of temperature always disturb the functions of the stomach, the bowels, the liver and the skin. It is through these that the most dangerous maladies assail us. Tone them in advance with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, and defy heat and malaria. se2

FOR THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

A political struggle, rarely surpassed in importance or intensity, has been precipitated on the country by the treachery of Andrew Johnson and some of his official or personal adherents to the great and patriotic party by which they were entrusted with power.

The aim of this treachery is to put the steadfast loyalists of the South under the feet of the "whipped but not subdued" Rebels, and to enable the latter to glut their vengeance on the former, whom they hate and curse as responsible for the most unexpected overthrow of their darling "Confederacy."

The recent wholesale massacre at Memphis and New Orleans, were but conspicuous manifestations of the spirit now rampant in the South, whereof the pro-Rebel triumph in Kentucky is a more recent example. The soldiers of Lee, Beauregard, Johnston and Hood are now the dominant power from the Potomac to the Rio Grande; they elect each other to office in preference even to stay-at-home Rebels; they have supplanted nearly all others as policemen of Southern cities; they are organized and officered as State Militia; and they ruthlessly crush every demonstration of loyal Whites or loyal Blacks in assertion of the EQUAL RIGHTS of AMERICAN FREEMEN. The school-houses of the Blacks are burned and their White teachers subjected to violence and outrage by unchanged Rebels, who relieve the work of murder and arson by cheers for Andy Johnson and execrations of Congress.

The purpose of forcing representatives of the Rebel States into Congress, in defiance of the loyal oath, by Presidential fiat and Military power, is openly avowed, with threats that those who resist it shall be treated as rebels, and a civil war thus kindled throughout the North and West.

It has thus become imperative that those who stand for LIBERTY and LOYALTY—for the right of the UNION to exist and of MAN to be FREE—that the glorious CIVIL RIGHTS ACT can never be repealed—that the rights of the humblest AMERICAN are henceforth guaranteed and shielded by the FEDERAL CONSTITUTION and must be maintained against all gainsayers—that the days wherein BLACKS had no rights which WHITES were bound to respect have passed away forever.

We hold to-day the power in all the FREE STATES of 1860, in WEST VIRGINIA and in MISSOURI. We must hold these in our ensuing elections, and add to them MARYLAND and DELAWARE—the former lost to us through treachery, otherwise Johnsonism. We must elect to the XLth Congress an overwhelming majority devoted to Loyalty, Nationality, and the inalienable Rights of Men.

To this end, let Light and Truth be systematically diffused to every neighborhood, every fireside, throughout our broad country.

To this end, we propose an extra issue of THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (identical in size and contents with the regular edition,) which we will supply on the following terms, the paper to be sent and subscriptions to commence on receipt of the money:

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

(ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS ON FIRST PAGE.)

The Commercial and Chronicle Decorations.

In our account of the decorations yesterday we failed to notice the display made by our friends of the Commercial. Theirs was decidedly one of the neatest trimmed and designed buildings in the city, and was gotten up regardless of expense. Flags and evergreens covered the entire front, and were relieved by beautiful stars of bright colored material [illegible] fastened to the walls. In jets of gas put up by Weldon & Kelly, Wood street, were the words of "Welcome to our Soldiers from the Commercial." Such a display was highly creditable to our neighbors' good taste and generosity, and the warm welcome accorded by them to the brave Boys in Blue will long be remembered by all good and loyal citizens.

THE CHRONICLE Building was also very beautifully decorated and attracted a large share of attention. It was festooned with forests of evergreens and every window was bedecked with flowers, flags and Chinese lanterns. At the first floor superb oil paintings of Lincoln, Grant and Washington were displayed from the cornice and encircled with wreaths of evergreen and cut flowers. The brave boys in the procession acknowledged the sterling worth of the Chronicle by rolling up cheers upon cheers as the procession moved past the building.

The Genius of Medicine

Seems to have achieved one of its most wonderful triumphs in the conception of that most superlative of all remedies ever invented, known as "DR. KEYSER'S BLOOD SEARCHER." You will search in vain through the vast storehouse of nature for plants and herbs, which in their combination will present to the world a remedy of equal power in the cure of diseases. Not only in the cure of the ordinary diseases induced by malarial influences, but those which have become almost "second nature" are thoroughly and completely put to flight by the searching and antiseptic powers of "Dr. Keyser's Blood Searcher." It is a specific for all diseases of the blood, and possesses a charm not only in eradicating them from the system when once located, but even in hindering their inception, by rendering the animal powers competent to their resistance. At this season of the year, when the exhalations from decaying and dissolving vegetable matters are corrupting the air, any person will receive benefit by fortifying the constitution with a bottle or two of Dr. Keyser's Blood Searcher. Fevers cannot take hold of the system when under the restorative and bracing influence of D. Keyser's Blood Searcher. It has cured the most malignant diseases that have ever been known to afflict mankind.

The long suffering invalid from Rheumatism by its use has been enabled to throw away his crutch. The pale and debilitated female has been enabled by its use to exult in the joyful return of good health and a rosy complexion. The palsied limbs are once more animated with life and motion, and it is all done by a restoration of the blood to a healthy and natural condition.

All impurities are carried out of the system through the channels and outlets which nature has established for that purpose. The stomach, that grand receptacle for the food, by its use has imparted vigor and power to concoct and prepare the food, out of which healthy blood is made and distributed to the various organs which have parts to perform in a healthy organism. There is no disease of weakness or debility that Dr. Keyser's blood searcher will not cure, and there is no disease of an infectious character that it will not [illegible] if taken in time. Ask for Dr. Keyser's Blood Searcher, at 140 Wood street, and take no other. $1 per bottle; six for $5.

The Johnstown Sufferers.

The following letter from Johnstown to Manager Hess, of the Opera House, will explain itself:

EARLY TELEGRAMS.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Queen Emma at San Francisco—Important Decision—Counter Revolution in Lower California—Capture of Mazatlan.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 21.—The steamer Sacramento, from Panama, arrived to-day with New York dates to September first. Queen Emma and suite arrived on the Sacramento. The council of Hawaii will receive the Queen officially.

Judge Field of the United States Circuit Court to-day entered a decision in favor of the United States for thirty-five thousand dollars against Michael Reese, on the bail bond of Jersey Larue [illegible], given in 1858. This case [illegible] is considered very important, [illegible] from [illegible] to obtain possession, by [illegible] of the greater part of [illegible] Francisco.

Passengers arrived from Cape St. Lucas on the steamer Sacramento, report the rumor of a counter revolution in Lower California, in favor of the exiled Governor, Antonio Pedrin, who, with four hundred men, have started from San Jose for St. Salvador.

Another rumor says the Imperial garrison of Mazatlan had started out [illegible] with a view of raising the siege of the place. They met a disastrous defeat, and Corona followed them to Mazatlan, which the town was captured and is held.

The steamer Continental [illegible] that Corona occupied Mazatlan, [illegible] that port, when the [illegible] commander seized her, with three thousand rifles and a quantity of ammunition, on the charge of being engaged in making war on Mexico.

The corner stone of the United States Branch Mint was laid at Carson city, Nevada, yesterday, with Masonic ceremonies.

Indian Depredations—One Hundred and Fifty Whites Murdered—Trains Attacked and Stock Driven off.

NEW YORK, September 25.—The Tribune's Leavenworth special says: Information received from Forts Laramie, Reno and Big Horn river, states that one hundred and fifty whites had been killed by the Indians. The road from Laramie to Powder river is filled with the graves of murdered men. A whole train was murdered on Big Horn River. Numbers of men and women have also been killed. A band of Arapahoes attacked another train on Big Horn, killed seven men, stole all the stock, and compelled the people to stop travel.

Scouts from Fort Reno report that the Sioux and Cheyennes attacked that post, carrying away all their stores. Reports state that a train of two hundred and fifty-six wagons on the road fought the Sioux and Cheyennes all the way from Fort Laramie to Reno, leaving twenty-two men killed. A great deal of stock was lost. Thirty-nine men have been killed on the Big Horn river.

Latest from Mexico.

NEW YORK, September 25.—The Tribune's New Orleans special has the following Mexican news: Maximilian abolished maritime prefecture as an unnecessary expense. Regular troops have been withdrawn from several towns. Magistrates are called upon to organize municipal guards for their protection.

The Estafette announces the resignation of General [illegible] of the command of the Austrian regiment and his return to Europe.

There are indications of vigorous operations shortly on the part of the Imperialists. It is reported that the Liberals have exercised terrible retaliations on the Imperialists in Monterey.

It is said that General Sheridan, while on the frontier, had frequent interviews with Juarez and his Generals at Matamoras.

Increased Pay Asked.

NEW YORK, September 25.—A Tribune Washington special says: Cornelius Vanderbilt gave notice to the Government yesterday, that unless he was granted increased pay for carrying mails on the Hudson and Harlem River Railroad, he should refuse to take the mails after October 1st. As the sum he demands is larger than the law allows the Department to give, his demands cannot be acceded to.

Brutal Prize Fight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A prize fight took place on Monday night between [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible]. The place appointed [illegible] streets, and in the fight [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] alleged he is not [illegible].

LOCAL NEWS ON FIRST AND THIRD PAGES.

Meeting of the Survivors of Libby Prison.

Notice having been given yesterday by General A. D. Streight that a meeting would be held last night at the headquarters of the Indiana delegation at the Monongahela House, of the survivors of Libby prison, quite a large number were in attendance, and at eight o'clock a preliminary meeting was organized by calling Colonel Hays, of New York, to the chair, and appointing Josiah Copley, Jr., Secretary.

It was announced that the object of the meeting was to form an association composed of the survivors of Libby prison, the organization to extend throughout all the States, the purpose of which was to gather all incidents and reminiscences of prison life, and compile them in historical form, so that the public might know what our men had to suffer from the hands of rebels, and also to use hereafter if necessary in order to bring certain parties to justice.

The meeting then went into permanent organization, by electing General Streight, President, and Captain Green, Secretary. Captain S. P. Gamble was elected assistant Secretary.

A motion was carried to include all who had suffered in southern prisons, including southern loyalists.

A motion was made to appoint a Vice President from every State, who should have the power to appoint a corresponding secretary, whose duty it should be to collect all the information in regard to prison life in the South that was possible, and to forward it to whoever might be appointed to compile the history. The following is the

LIST OF VICE PRESIDENTS.

Col. John Bolen, Nasuna, N. H.
Col. Sam'l M'Kee, Mt. Sterling, Ky.
Capt. Frank Jocelyn, Boston, Mass.
H. G. Sawyer, New Jersey.
Capt. L. B. Bono, Toledo, Iowa.
Brig. Gen. E. L. Hayes, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Col. W. A. Robinson, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Lieut. J. E. Bowers, New Martinsville, W. Va.
Maj. Thos. G. Smith, Jackson, Tenn.
Gov. Fletcher, St. Louis, Mo.
Capt. Milton Russell, North Salem, Ind.
Lieut. Rudolph Kost, Bridgeport, Conn.
N. W. Bradley, Wisconsin.
Capt. A. W. Tourgee, Greensboro, N. C.
J. Moxon, Battle Creek, Mich.
Lieut. F. Wace, Bangor, Maine.
Maj. C. E. White, Baltimore, Md.
Col. A. T. Wilson, Omaha, Nebraska.
Gen. G. W. Sunhill, Oscella, Cal.
Lieut. Col. M'Mackey, Paris, Edgar co., Ill.

A motion was then carried that this be called the "Association of Rebel Prison Survivors."

Chaplain Moxon, Capt. Tourgee and Josiah Copley, Jr., were appointed a committee to draft a circular setting forth the objects of the Association.

The President was empowered to fill all vacancies in the Vice Presidents that might occur, either by oversight, want of a knowledge of names, or neglect or refusal to act.

All prisoners who deserted their flag and comrades by enlisting under the rebel banner are to be debarred from entering the Association.

Our limited space will not allow us to use all of our notes, but the above is the substance of the meeting. It adjourned at a late hour to meet to-night, at the same place, at half-past seven o'clock, and it is hoped that all who were prisoners during the rebellion will be present.

Informal Meeting of Councils.

In accordance with the notice in the city papers, the members of both branches of the Councils met at the Mayor's office yesterday morning. The meeting was called to order by President Steele, when, on motion, Robert Robb, Esq., was called to the chair, who briefly stated the object of the meeting. A number of distinguished gentlemen were on a visit to our city who had taken an important part in the suppression of the rebellion, and it was highly proper that Pittsburgh should show proper respect to our noble defenders—the Boys in Blue.

Dr. Gallaher offered the following:

Resolved, That the Councils in a body visit the City Hall to pay respects to our brave soldiers and sailors in Convention assembled.

Messrs. Ford and Millan were appointed to wait on the Resident Committee and inform them of their action and ascertain what hour would be convenient for the purpose indicated.

During the absence of these gentlemen President Steele called the attention to the fact, that there was a soldier attending the Convention, who, by his bravery and the peculiar circumstances surrounding him, had become a national celebrity, and if not out of place it might be well to extend to this aged "hero" the hospitality of our city.

Remarks were made by Messrs. McAuley, Gallaher, Brush, Ford, Morrow, Killen and Armstrong, when, on motion, it was Resolved, That we extend to the brave and gallant citizen soldier John G. Burns of Gettysburg, who, at the age of three score years and ten, shouldered his musket and joined the ranks of our brave troops and fought the rebels in the various engagements at that time, the hospitalities of our citizens.

Wm. N. Ogden, Esq., heartily concurred with the remarks of Mr. Steel, and it afforded him much pleasure to honor a man who had so nobly defended his State in the hour of peril, and that he would go a little further and offer as an amendment, that we, in our individual capacity, purchase for the aged and noble soldier, a gold headed cane, as a mark of our esteem for true and loyal men.

Messrs. Ogden, McQueen and Loew were appointed to purchase a cane with suitable inscription engraved on the same. The committee appointed to purchase the same performed those duties, after which General Negley and the resident committee, accompanied by a brass band, appeared at the place of meeting and escorted the body to City Hall. The enthusiastic reception at the Convention will be found reported in our account of the proceedings elsewhere, as also an account of the presentation of the cane to Mr. Burns.

Meeting of the New Jersey Delegation.

At a meeting of the New Jersey delegation, held at their headquarters, at the Merchants' Hotel, on the morning of the 26th inst., it was

Resolved, That the thanks of the delegation be, and are hereby tendered to the ladies of Pittsburgh and vicinity, and to the citizens of same for the kind reception and hospitality given us as delegates to the Convention of Loyal Soldiers and Sailors.

Resolved, That the foregoing resolution be signed by the members of the delegation and published in the Pittsburgh papers of the city.

Maj. Gen. Robert McAllister, Maj. Gen. Jas. Stewart, Major W. H. Lord, Sergt. Wm. L. Davenport, Capt. Wm. H. Necker, Capt. John B. Lutz, Capt. Wm. Banit, Sergt. John G. Parkinson, Lieut. T. S. Moore, Col. W. E. Potter, Capt. S. F. Holbrook, U. S. N., Capt. T. J. Lloneit, U. S. N., Capt. W. T. Ross, Lieut. A. F. Wrotnowski, Capt. J. D. Bentley, Capt. T. E. Gates, Brigadier General E. B. Grubb, Capt. Chas. Courtois, Lieutenant —— Dehrans, Sergeant John Miller, Private Jason Schmitt, Private Joseph Holbert, Major P. A. Everson, Lieutenant John Manahan, Captain D. E. Pierson, Brigadier General L. T. Haskell, Captain J. B. Holt, Major Z. B. Pangborn, Major General Rumsey, Colonel Fred. Cooper, Private George Fewkes, Lieutenant B. Jennings, and Private P. McMurray.

Amusements.

OPERA HOUSE.—At the Opera House, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams, the far-famed delineators of Irish character, are holding forth to crowded and fashionable audiences at this deservedly popular place of amusement. To-night they both appear in the leading characters in the greatest of all Irish dramas, entitled the "Connie Soogah." This is one of the finest dramas in which these talented humorists appear, and doubtless to-night seats will be a scarce article at the Opera House.

The sale of tickets for the Ritching's English Opera Troupe commenced yesterday at the Opera House, and nearly every available seat was secured for the first performance, next Monday evening. We advise all of our friends to immediately secure their seats in advance as the rush will be unprecedented next week.

PITTSBURGH THEATRE.—Mr. Frank Mayo is playing to excellent houses at the "Old Drury." He is a capital actor, and if his high histrionic abilities were properly understood by our theatre-going community, he would be greeted by overflowing houses. He appears to-night in Jack Cade, and we hope he will draw such a house as his merits deserve.

TRIMBLE'S VARIETIES.—Trimble's Varieties is well patronized, and the renowned Carleton is every night adding fresh evidences of his wonderful abilities as an humorist. The stock company is unexceptionable, and the management of the place is faultless.

SWISS BELL RINGERS.—The famous Spaulding Brothers' Swiss Bell Ringers are coming next week. They are the only genuine troupe of bell ringers in the world. They will perform at Masonic Hall, commencing on Monday.

Meeting at the Monongahela House.

A meeting was improvised in the Rotunda of the Monongahela House, last night, by placing Mr. Pope upon the stair landing over the Hall entrance, where he sang "My Policy" and several songs, accompanied by the guitar. Speeches were then made by General A. L. Pearson, M. I. Schenck, of Lancaster; General Robinson, of New York; General Duncan, of New Hampshire; Judge Shannon, Gen. Sargent, of Massachusetts; Col. Norton, of West Virginia; Colonel Nash, of Ohio; General Mahan, of Fenian notoriety; Colonel Duncan, of Indiana, and Major Wilson, of Indiana. Mr. Locke, of Maine, then sang "Swinging round the Circle" to the tune of Glory Hallelujah, the crowd joining in the chorus. Several other speeches were then made, but we were called to the meeting of the Libby Prisoners.

Creditable Display.

The display of welcome made by Dunseath & Co., Jewelers, Fifth street, was highly creditable to that enterprising firm. They had a greeting in jets of gas to the boys in blue, which was highly worthy of particular notice. The gas flames and gas letters were constructed and put up by the well known house of T. T. Ewens, Wood street. The display made at Dunseath's called forth the cheers of all the different delegations in the procession.

At the lower part of Fifth street White, Orr & Co., McElveen & Co., Bates & Bell, D. Dunseath, Macrum & Carlisle and F. H. Eaton, all had very creditable displays of beautiful illuminating designs and signals of welcome.

A RARE PLEASURE.—A great and valuable treat was afforded the lovers of eloquent oratory last evening at City Hall. According to announcement James E. Murdoch, the patriot actor, recited an epic of Liberty. The Hall was densely crowded, and the recitation at great was received with enthusiastic applause. After the reading was concluded Generals Schenck and Garfield followed in spirited speeches.

Allegheny County Agricultural Fair—Last Day.

Yesterday was the last day of the Fair, and as though in revenge for having given two days of good weather, the elements again became turbulent, and the rain during the fore part of the day fell in torrents. As a matter of course, this put an end to everything like an exhibition, and exhibitors commenced a general exodus with their articles. By night the buildings were emptied of their contents, and the grounds where all had been so busy had resumed their original quiet.

Like the preceding one, this Fair was spoiled by the continued bad weather. The Board of Managers worked incessantly and indefatigably, but there was no use of attempting to strive against the elements. They lost $3,000 by the Fair of 1865, and by this they lose an additional $4,000, independent of the premiums, which of themselves amount to from $1,200 to $1,300. A great many of the exhibitors, satisfied with having premiums awarded them, have generously refused to accept the money, but donate it to the association, and it is to be hoped that all will do the same, and thereby assist in lightening the load of debt for which the Board is responsible. These Fairs are not matters of speculation with the managers, for whenever they have been successful, the surplus fund has always been handed over to some charitable object. The last Fair held before the war netted the association a profit of $1,000. This was donated to the Agricultural College of Center county.

In regard to the success of the Fair as an exhibition of industrial and agricultural pursuits, we do not think any one can doubt the ill-natured flings of a cotemporary to the contrary notwithstanding. Any one who visited the grounds during the continuance of the Fair will bear us out in what we say. The show of fine blooded stock was certainly very superior, and the display of agricultural implements, vegetables, and mechanic arts, the Floral and Art display, and the dry goods, &c., on exhibition was certainly very superior, and had the weather been favorable, would have been much larger. We sympathize with the association in their heavy loss, and can say from actual knowledge that it was through no fault of theirs, for they worked late and early, through rain and sunshine, without reward, and with only the hopes and expectation of making the Allegheny County Agricultural Fair the greatest success in the State, but as we have before stated, there was no use of warring against the elements.

There is but one way that we know of to in any way make up the losses sustained, and we understand that the matter is already under consideration. It is this. As there was no opportunity of testing the speed of horses on account of the condition of the track, it is proposed at some future day not far distant, to hold a Horse Fair, open to all animals, premiums to be awarded not only to the finest and best trotters, pacers and racers, but to the best riders. For instance, to the finest lady equestrian, a very fine side saddle and riding cap will be awarded, and the same to the best gentleman equestrian. It is in contemplation to keep this Fair open for three days, so that all horses can have a chance. The entries will be in harness and under the saddle. Should the matter be decided upon affirmatively—and we hope it will—the society will have an opportunity of relieving themselves in part of their load of debt. The Board will meet one week from next Saturday, when the matter will be decided upon.

ARBITRAMENT.

There was a great deal of dissatisfaction felt on account of the action the Committee on Penmanship, in the matter of their decision between the Messrs. Cowley and Shafer. In the first place, there was no premium offered for the best specimens of penmanship, although the committee appointed to decide between the respective claimants, granted premium cards to Mr. Shafer, for the best work done on the ground, while it is averred that cards were attached to the specimens of penmanship and pen drawing not done on the ground, but prepared in the city for exhibition. The Board, at a meeting held at headquarters yesterday, decided to leave the matter to a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Randall Morton, Jared M. Brush, and John F. Jennings, with instructions to report at the next regular meeting of the Board to be held one week from Saturday next.

The Wigwam.

The following communication appeared in last evening's Chronicle relative to the accident at the Wigwam on Sunday last:

EDITORS CHRONICLE: Having noticed an article published in several of the city papers of Monday, in regard to the slight accident which occurred by the falling of a small portion of the roof of the Union Wigwam, being erected in Allegheny city by Messrs. Frazier & Bro., we beg leave to say that the building was in a very unfinished condition, and without any of the essential appliances necessary to strengthen and bind said building together—just in the same condition as the frame of any other building may be when in an unfinished state. Now, we desire to make this explanation in order to correct any false impression that may have gone abroad from the notices published, and would freely state that the wigwam building when fully completed, will be strong and substantial in every particular, and so far from passing any censure on Messrs. Frazier & Bro. we take pleasure in according them great credit for their energy, skill and promptness in faithfully performing their contract.

Killed on the Railroad.

A man named John Doblan was killed on Tuesday night, on the Connellsville railroad, near Glenwood station. The body was discovered yesterday morning, by Conductor Kennedy, and was horribly mutilated. Both legs and arms, and the head were severed from the trunk, and the entrails were scattered for some distance along the track. The remains were gathered together and brought to this city yesterday morning. An inquest was held yesterday afternoon by Coroner Clawson, and a verdict of accidental death was rendered. The deceased was a laborer, and resided near Glenwood. He was thirty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and children. It is supposed that he came to his death by falling off the platform of a morning train.

Distinguished Arrival.

Mr. Fred. Douglass, the great colored orator of America, arrived in the city yesterday. He was received by a Committee of the following well known colored gentlemen of this city: Rev. T. W. Devine, Prof. George B. Vashon, Samuel A. Neale, T. B. Roach, and John W. Finch. The distinguished gentleman will deliver two addresses during his stay in the city, viz: One in Masonic Hall to-morrow evening, and one to-morrow morning at the grand festival and anniversary to be held at Iron City Park by our colored citizens.

Second Ward, Allegheny, Boys in Blue.

At a meeting of the Second ward, Allegheny, Boys in Blue, held at the School house, Sergeant C. S. Henry in the chair, a vote of thanks was tendered to Captain W. E. Stewart for the gentlemanly aid rendered the Club in procuring the ladies of the ward, who participated in the procession of Tuesday night, a suitable conveyance to their residences, after the breaking of a tire of the wagon in which they were riding. The club adjourned to meet at eight o'clock this morning, to join in the grand procession to-day.

HEAVY TRAVEL.—Since the Harrison Convention in the year 1840, we have never seen anything to equal the immense gathering of people who were assembled in our streets night before last. From every street, alley and byway they poured forth in thousands. They came from a distance, from near and from far, in all manner of vehicle and conveyance. The Citizens Passenger Railway had on thirteen extra cars, and even then could not accommodate the crowd. We are informed by Mr. J. L. Irwin, conductor on open car No. 19, that he left the office of the company at twelve o'clock that night with one hundred and twenty-eight passengers on board. This we think is the largest load ever carried by one street car.

CARD OF CORRECTION.—I noticed an article in the Chronicle of Tuesday, giving the list of the "White Boys in Blue," in which my name appears as Secretary. I have never been, or expect to be, connected with any association or party who have not the welfare of the country at heart. I am in favor of the measures proposed by Congress, and opposed to the policy of Andrew Johnson. My vote shall never be recorded against what I consider it to be for the best interests of my country, and I am heart and soul with the brave "Boys in Blue." A. P. CHILDS.

OAKLAND, PITT TOWNSHIP, Sept. 26, 1866.

CORRECTED LIST.—The following is a correct list of the Committee appointed by the Pennsylvania Delegation on Organization, an incorrect list of which has been published in some of the papers: Gen. Chas. T. Collis, Paymaster Charles Stewart, Gen. J. Barnes, Capt. A. F. Wilson, Capt. Hoffstot.

—A correspondent asks "what would be the effect of a resumption of specie payments on the National Banks, inasmuch as they have, with one or two exceptions, sold their gold—many of these banks not now holding one dollar in gold?" When the government resumes specie payments the greenback currency will of course be equal to coin. How the Government will bring about that desirable consummation is no part of the business of the National Banks, but once done, the banks will come in for the facilities afforded by the increased amount of coin and its equivalent. By the last monthly statement of the Secretary of the Treasury, there were in circulation about four hundred millions of greenbacks, and the Treasury now holds a hundred millions, more or less, in coin. The banks of New York, Philadelphia, and Boston hold, in addition, an average of ten to twelve millions more. There are those who believe that there is gold enough in the country to justify instant resumption, contending that all we lack is a fair price for our national securities; that were Five Twenties over par in gold, as they ought to be, the Secretary would need only permission by law to convert greenbacks into Five Twenties to enable him to resume directly, and that he will need no more gold when his greenbacks shall have been brought to par with gold by being readily convertible into an interest-bearing security that is at or above gold par. This desirable result attained by the Government, what is to hinder the National Banks from their vast resources in the national securities, from meeting their liabilities in coin or its equivalent? How the Government is going to resume is a more important, and, probably, a more difficult question to solve than how the banks will follow the example. One suggestion to this end is, to make the greenbacks fundable in a security at par with gold, and the work is done. Every greenback will be at par with gold, and then little gold will be wanted. The interest on the public debt may be paid, as the revenue from customs may be received, in greenbacks as well as in gold. Practically, not one creditor in a hundred chooses to burthen himself with gold in any quantity when paper is convertible into it. It is its superior value that now renders gold desirable and causes all who can claim to exact it. Give us a par currency, and we shall not need nor use a dollar in gold where we now require and handle ten. And the first step toward resumption, the immediate resumptionists argue, is the prompt employment of all the government coin not needed to pay interest in buying up and cancelling public debt. Sufficient, however, for the day is the evil thereof, and it is scarcely worth while to meet trouble half way by determining how the national banks will be affected by a specie resumption, until the Government has first achieved that desirable result. If, however, we could be made to remember in this connection, to call some things, when talking of money, by their right names, we should habitually have before us the true state of financial matters; we should know that gold has no price, but that other things, including legal-tender notes, have; that gold is not a premium, but that legal-tender notes are depreciated; that what we have to do to get back to specie payments is not to put down the price of gold, but to bring our legal-tender money up to the value of coin—the recognized money of the world.—Phila. Ledger.

—The Chicago Tribune says:

We understand that Harvey Doolittle was arrested to-day charged with embezzlement, at the instance of W. E. Lewis & Co., bankers, at Rochelle, Illinois, who had deposited with the Producers' Bank or Harvey Doolittle an amount of government securities as special deposit, and which, at this time, cannot be found. An examination will take place to-morrow (Tuesday) morning. A suit has also been entered against Harvey Doolittle, as President of the Producers' Bank, for a claim of $13,000, preferred by the Bank of Montreal, who claim that Doolittle obtained from them a bill of Exchange to this amount, under false pretences. A writ of ouster was issued, and no denial has been served.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, }
WEDNESDAY, September 26, 1866. }

There is really nothing that is new to be said in regard to the produce markets. The movements in most of the leading commodities are of an unimportant character, and with the exception of Flour and Wheat, the market is devoid of excitement.

GROCERIES—Coffee is steady, with a regular jobbing demand at 27 for good, 28¼ to 29 for prime, and 30 for choice. Sugars firm but unchanged: Rio 12¾, for good, 13 to 13¼ for prime, 13¾ to 15 for choice; hard refined 17¼ to 17½; soft do, 16 to 16¾. Molasses range from 75 to 85. Teas—firm, $1 for green, $5 to $1,25 for choice, and $1, to $1,30 for Japan. Syrups—good, 75, prime 90 to $1, and choice, $1,10 to $1,20.

GRAIN—Wheat is very firm, and there is but little offering. Oats firm but unchanged; sales of 500 bush from store at 44@45, 500 do at 45. Corn is scarce and in demand, may be quoted at 82 to 85, on track and in elevator. Barley is wanted at $1,00@1,05 for prime spring. Sale of 2 cars prime Western Rye at $1, free on board.

MILL FEED—Sales of 15 tons Middlings at $1,25 to $1,30, and 15 tons Bran at 95 to $1. Seconds may be quoted at $1,40 to $1,50. There is considerable en route for this market, but the stock at present is very light.

FLOUR—Is very firm and somewhat excited, and prices have still further advanced. We now quote at $11@$12¼ for Spring, and $13 to $13¼ for Winter Wheat. Sales of Rye Flour at $6 to $6¼, and Cornmeal at $4¾.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is steady with a moderate jobbing demand but unchanged, at 17¼ to 17¾ for Shoulders; 19¼ to 20 for Ribbed Sides, and 23 to 29 for Sugar Cured Hams. Lard is dull and nominal at 20¼ to 21 for prime kettle. Mess Pork is in limited supply and held firmly at $37@34½.

APPLES—There is no improvement to note in the demand, and the market is dull and unchanged at $1 to $1,50 per bbl—choice, in large sized barrels, at $3.

SEEDS—Flaxseed is in demand, and sells readily in small lots at $2¾—sales from store at $3. Timothy Seed is dull; small sales from store at $3¾. Clover Seed is quiet and unchanged.

EGGS—In good demand higher, sales of fresh packed having been made to-day at 25 to 26.

BUTTER—Is firm for prime fresh Roll, with sales at 34 to 35. Packed is selling at 25 to 30, as to quality.

CHEESE—Is firm but unchanged; sales at 16 to 17 for Western Reserve; 17 to 18 for Hamburg and 20 to 21 for Goshen.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, }
WEDNESDAY, Sept. 26, 1866. }

CRUDE—The demand for Crude was less active to-day, and while the market was dull and weak, prices remain unchanged at 11, barrels returned and in bulk, and 13, packages included. The prospects for another swell in the river are very favorable, and this had a tendency to bring about the apparent weakness, together with unfavorable advices from the east, though it is but proper to remark that as yet holders do not seem disposed to make any concessions in order to effect sales, and we believe there are some parties still willing to pay 11 cts. The sales all told to day did not exceed five hundred barrels.

REFINED—The market for bonded oil was dull and neglected, with an apparent drooping tendency. We can report sales of 1000 bbls, in two lots of 500 each, at 38c, free on board cars here, and 200 at 41, delivered in Philadelphia. There is but comparatively little offering, either for present or future delivery, as our refiners as a general thing seem disposed to hold off, in hopes of a more active market and better prices. Free oil is dull and nominally unchanged.

ARRIVALS—The following arrivals were reported to-day:

RIVER NEWS.

The river continues to recede steadily at this point, with but little over six feet in the channel by the pier marks last evening. Heavy rains fell on Tuesday night and yesterday morning, and another rise is confidently predicted. At Oil City, as we learn by private advices, considerable rain fell during Tuesday, and the Allegheny was swelling at that point yesterday, with three feet in the channel.

The Forest City, from Parkersburg, is the only arrival we have to report. This boat, we understand, will retire from the Pittsburgh and Parkersburg trade for the present, her place having been taken by the Grey Eagle.

The Pine Grove was to have left for Beaver yesterday afternoon, and the New State, for Wheeling, and Grey Eagle, for Parkersburg, doubtless got off last evening. These boats took away large number of delegates, who were here in attendance at the Convention.

The Glasgow, W. A. Caldwell, and Bertha, were loading at Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Monday.

The Argosy did not get off on Tuesday evening as expected, but she left early yesterday forenoon. The Echo was making preparations to leave for Oil City last evening.

Business is not very lively at the landing, freights for all points being scarce, and steamboatmen generally feel discouraged. There is some little offering for Cincinnati and Saint Louis, while for New Orleans and some other points we could name, there seems to be little or nothing.

The Belle Vernon, Capt. Darragh, with Mr. Wm. Blackstock in the office, will soon be ready to leave for St. Louis. She will be followed by the Kenton, in charge of Capt. Frank Marratta.

The Bayard, Captain George D. Moore, is the regular packet for Parkersburg to-day, leaving at noon.

The Importer, Capt. Ness, and the Ezra Porter, Capt. Porter, both tip-top boats, are announced for New Orleans forthwith.

The new and pretty side-wheeler, Quick-Step, in command of Capt. Donaldson, with Sam. Barr, jr., in the office, is the regular packet for Cincinnati and passengers and shippers should bear this fact in mind. The Quick-Step will ply as a regular packet between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, leaving here every Saturday.

The Columbia left St. Louis for Pittsburgh on Saturday, and the America is loading at the same point for this city. Capt. Golding has arrived there. The Yorktown and Kate Putnam were expected to arrive at St. Louis on Sunday night.

We extract the following items from the Cincinnati Commercial of Tuesday:

A fleet of tugs, with large tows of coal, arrived from Pittsburgh yesterday, and a number returned to Pittsburgh with tows of empty barges............Capt. C. Shinkle dropped the Anna to the levee yesterday, to load for St. Louis............Capt. F. K. Barclay has taken command of the new steamer Geo. D. Palmer, and will load for St. Louis............The United States Mail Line of Louisville packets, have advanced the cabin fare to $1,50..........The W. A. Caldwell reships 50 tons on the General Buell to-day for Louisville. The Caldwell leaves the Mail Line wharf for Pittsburgh this morning............There was twenty-six steamers at the levee yesterday, all trying to load. There was not enough merchandise dragged down during the day to load one boat. Business was unusually quiet yesterday, notwithstanding the splendid stage of the river. Capt. Marsh Clark, of the Navajo, was out yesterday, after being confined to his room for several days............Capt. Wm. H. Cadley, late clerk of the St. Charles, has chartered the Clermont for the Louisville and Troy trade, as a tri-weekly packet. The Clermont will leave for Louisville this evening............Yesterday at 3:30 p. m., a fleet of coal and salt barges lying at G. N. Stewart's coal harbor, just below the Eureka Docks, was struck by a floating mass of drift-wood with such force as to drag out the posts to which they were fastened, setting adrift twenty-two barges of coal, one barge of salt and two empty salt barges. The salt barge was sunk opposite White Hall, and six of the coal barges between Cincinnati and Lawrenceburg. Sixteen barges have been recovered, the rest have been landed at points between Cincinnati and Aurora. The loss in coal, salt and barges is estimated at $21,000............Mr. W. H. Cropper, the well known steamboat clerk, was married in Louisville a few days since.

The St. Louis Republican has the following announcement:

"We regret to announce the death of Mr. Rod. Clarkson, who for some time past served as clerk of the steamer [illegible]. He died at Cairo on Sunday, of cholera. Mr. Clarkson was well and favorably known as a steamboat clerk."

STEAMBOATS.

FOR CINCINNATI.—The [illegible] side-wheel steamer QUICKSTEP............Capt. S. Donaldson, S. Barr, Jr., Clerk, will run as a regular weekly packet, as announced above, on SATURDAY, leaving at [illegible].
